The investigation into Lily Zheng's murder was led by Detective Kevin Gannon of the Nassau County Police Department. Gannon quickly identified Murat Celebi, a 26-year-old Turkish immigrant, as a suspect in the case. Celebi had been seen arguing with Zheng on the day of her murder, and he had a history of domestic violence.

Celebi was arrested and charged with Zheng's murder. He was convicted of second-degree murder in 2009 and sentenced to 25 years to life in prison. The case was a major victory for Gannon and the Nassau County Police Department, and it helped to raise awareness of the issue of domestic violence.

The Evidence

The evidence against Celebi was overwhelming. Witnesses saw him arguing with Zheng on the day of her murder, and his DNA was found on her body. Celebi also had a history of domestic violence, and he had been arrested for assaulting Zheng in the past.

At Celebi's trial, the prosecution presented a strong case against him. The jury heard from witnesses who saw Celebi arguing with Zheng, and they also heard from experts who testified about his DNA being found on her body. The jury also heard from Celebi's ex-wife, who testified that he had been abusive towards her.

The defense presented a weak case. Celebi's attorney tried to argue that the witnesses were mistaken and that the DNA evidence was unreliable. However, the jury was not convinced, and they found Celebi guilty of second-degree murder.

The Aftermath

The Lily Zheng case had a profound impact on the community. It raised awareness of the issue of domestic violence, and it led to changes in the way that law enforcement handles domestic violence cases.

The case also had a lasting impact on the Zheng family. Lily Zheng's parents have spoken out about the dangers of domestic violence, and they have worked to raise awareness of the issue.

The Lily Zheng case is a reminder that domestic violence is a serious problem that can have deadly consequences. It is important to remember that domestic violence is never the victim's fault, and that there is help available for victims of domestic violence.
